Universal Writing

I want to write multi-verse
about the multiverse
but I'll start with a uni-verse
about the universe.
I'll devise a solar system
to travel the Solar System.
I'll munch on a Milky Way
to ponder the Milky Way.
I'll critique with a local group
my thoughts on the Local Group.

Too complex—I'll moon
over an eclipse of the Moon
and seek some rays of sun
to catch energy from Sun.

Can't raise temperature or be fast like mercury.
I'll just be hot and roast on Mercury.
Maybe I'll evoke seductive Venus
to unveil cloudy Venus.
But I can't even un-earth
much wisdom on Earth.
With skill that mars
I'll write superficially of Mars.
I get very saturnine
when I ring around Saturn.
I'll find mighty god Jupiter.
He might be big on Jupiter.
Or beseech the sea god Neptune
to un-freeze frozen Neptune.
I might try un-godlike Uranus—
considered a kick to your anus.
Alas we lost downgraded Pluto
now down-dog-faced like Pluto.
Though I might write a series
about demoted Ceres-- I'll never be a star
as bright as any star.

Same Word Couplets

1. End the lines with the same word.
2. For fun you could add some variations of the words.
