

Goethe Stanza

Children of the Bubble or Children of the Big Bang

- a Multiverse membranes bump and burst
- b bubbling new universes in the "Bulk"
- a Is this theory one of the worst
- b or singularity becoming big hyper-space hulk?

- a Do we dwell on a flat universe plane
- b or a slightly curved surface?
- a Toward Big Chill or Big Crunch insane?
- b Can we find a wormhole to a new place?

- a Are we holograms from a black hole's
- b event horizon or do we exist
- a as simultaneously multi-dimensional souls?
- b where every decision becomes a plot twist?

- a In some dimension I could share
- b living quite a different life.
- a My imagination could live elsewhere
- b I could minimize earthly strife.

- a M-Theory, String Theory, aided by Hubble
- b seeking Theory of Everything
- a while the universe blows bubbles
- b in the infinite space bulk can bring?

- a Are we smacking brane on brane
- b creating endless options and configurations?
- a Dimensional boundaries unseen, untouched plane,
-
- b existences melding, out of explanations.
-
- a Will we ever understand?
- b Can we ever really control destiny's unfolding?
- a Are we at the mercy of Big Bang's command
-
- b or burst bubbles continually molding?

Goethe Stanza

1. No set meter or syllable count.
2. No set number of stanzas.
3. Each stanza has a single line a, a couplet b-a, and a single line b.